

Angela Gallegos-Macias

Born and raised in New Mexico the notion of community has always been a central premise for Angela Gallegos-Macias. She recognized from an early age that it is the cohesive members of a community that when aligned can make the difference for positive change. Dr. Angela Gallegos-Macias has always strived for excellence, equity and the ability to bring all voices to center to be represented.

Angela Gallegos-Macias is a board-certified family medicine physician who serves as the Medical Director of the PMG Las Estancias Primary Care Clinic and the Assistant Medical Director for primary care-Presbyterian Medical Group. She received her bachelor's degree in psychobiology from Occidental College in Los Angeles, California. She earned her medical degree from the University of New Mexico School of Medicine.

As a family and community physician Angela Gallegos-Macias has provided primary care to patients of all ages in Albuquerque's South Valley since 2007. Her passion is practicing at the intersection of chronic disease management and preventive care while emphasizing the interplay of the social determinants of health. Innovation and being a vehicle for change drive her motivation and she thrives in the South Valley community creating a bridge to the patient centered medical neighborhood, leveraging community partnerships to build a stronger, healthier and invested community. Dr. Gallegos-Macias' role models are her two teenage daughters and her mother as they remind her of the past and the future and keep her invested in her community with the desire to continue to give back.