

Manuel Pino

Growing up in Socorro, NM granted Manuel Pino the opportunity to gain an appreciation for his community, family and heritage. With an appreciation for the small town community perspective he strives to incorporate those principles into his daily interactions. He takes pride in appreciating and honoring his background and strives to continue to support others in their success and endeavors.

He has dedicated his career to healthcare and has worked for Presbyterian for 25 years. Throughout that time he has worked in the capacity as an RN providing direct patient care and for the last 21 years has been in management. He currently serves as the Senior Director of Practice Operations for Primary Care which allows him the opportunity to strategically plan for primary care operations and growth potential while additionally oversee the financial and operational management of Presbyterians Southern Central Delivery System Clinics.

Manuel earned his BSN-RN from the University of New Mexico and went on to pursue an Executive MBA from the Anderson School of Management. Manuel enjoys spending time with his family and nurturing and guiding his three children to take pride in their community and foster a social conscience of excellence and giving.